

Volunteering for the Vancouver 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games: Community Contributor School Identification Code

It's the chance of a lifetime to join the team of Vancouver 2010 volunteers. As Canada prepares to welcome the world through the planning and staging of Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games, no job is too small. Every task and every contribution matters. Much like the five Olympic Rings which are intertwined, volunteers are all linked together equally. Strength comes from the bonds formed between each link . . . from each and every person contributing to the success of the Games.

As a community contributor, applicants from your school will be provided with a "School Identification Code". This code will help the volunteer recruitment team identify and recognize applications from your school. In addition, this will also help us provide you with the number of applicants that have applied as a volunteer from your school.

Timeline to apply:

As our volunteer program is very popular and thousands of people have applied to volunteer, we encourage that you have your students, staff and faculty apply to our website by November 1st. The sooner applications are in the sooner we can start processing them and with recruitment well under way we don't want you to be left behind.

Apply online:

Please see the following page on applying your school identification code on the volunteer application form.

Douglas School Identification Code: SCNND099

Code Placement on the Volunteer application form

- The Code identifies your organization specifically and is for your exclusive use – place the code in the “for office use only” tab at the bottom right hand side on the last page of the application form.
- Ensures that we can easily identify your volunteers
- Volunteers will still have to pass the basic criteria set, security clearance and the face to face interview process.
